Trump's wall

By Álvaro Echegoyen

Donald Trump, the USA president has started the project of building a wall in the border with their neighbours, the Mexicans. It looked like something that wasn't going to happen but it will officially start to be build next Monday.

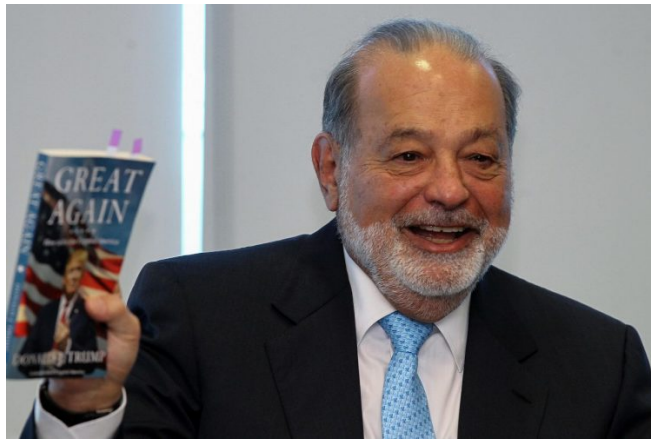

'A nation without borders isn't a nation' that's what Mr. Trump said when asked about building the wall. Today, Thursday 26th of January of 2017 we can officially say that the wall is real. Is that ethic? Is that a good idea? Will that improve American's life? No one knows, but Mr. Trump feels totally sure about his decision. As well as that, he has decided to start an anti-immigration plan in order to avoid problems with terrorism.

Donald Trump has already hired 15,000 persons for the jobs of immigration officers and border patrol. Another big question every person in world should ask them selves is what is Mexico's president next step, trying to have a friendly relationship with Mr. Trump or get divorced and start a new era by them selves against the United States of America.

Well, our president, Enrique Peña hasn't said much about the situation but we could tell he isn't exactly in favour of building the wall as it will for mostly sure decrease our economy. He has already started the conversations with both important American politics such as Trump or with big Mexican businessmen such as Carlos Slim.

Carlos Slim, has already said he is totally against the wall as in his opinion the wall is pure racism. Even though, Carlos Slim wants mexicans to remain together in this difficult situation, we are running. Foreign countries have already said many things about the topic and they will keep talking about it for a long time.

Anyway, during this next days and weeks to come there will be more information concerned to the wall and so. President Trump will have many important meetings and so will President Peña.
